

Call for Papers

Special Issue on: Medicines Optimisation

The British Journal of Pharmacy will publish a special themed issue on "Medicines optimization." This Special Issue aims to explore how patients take their medicine over time in the context of their daily lives, home and social settings in order to improve adherence to treatment, patient outcomes and medication safety and reduce medicines wastage. Therefore, on the behalf of our Editorial office, we would like to invite researchers to contribute research articles, review articles, short commentaries or case reports to this special issue.

Submission

Manuscripts for this special issue can be submitted now and the deadline for the submission is 31st June 2017

To submit please visit the BJPharm website and during submission please indicate that the manuscript is being submitted for the special issue.

Publication

All manuscripts if accepted for publication after peer review shall be published online as 'in-press' as soon as possible. However, the special issue is anticipated to be published in full by the October 2017.

Further information

Please contact the special issue Editor, Dr F Alhomoud for further information regarding submission in the special issue. For all other general enquiries, please contact the editorial office.